DUBLIN, IRELAND.

2026 International Construction Law Conference

The International Construction Law Association (ICLA) welcomes delegates to the 2026 Construction Law Conference, taking place 19–20 May 2026 at the Irish Museum of Modern Art (IMMA), Dublin.

This year's theme, "Megaprojects at Home and Abroad: Delivery Models for Project Success and Dispute Avoidance", reflects the critical moment facing Ireland as it embarks on major national infrastructure programmes such as the Dublin Metrolink, one of the largest investments in the state's history.

The conference brings together global experts to examine the delivery models, legal frameworks, and collaborative approaches that support successful megaproject execution and reduce the risk of disputes.

CONFERENCE FOCUS

MEGAPROJECT DELIVERY MODELS

Including NEC, PPP, Alliance Contracting, Integrated Project Delivery (IPD), and hybrid approaches, with case studies from successful international projects.

RISK ALLOCATION INNOVATION

A shift from traditional risk transfer to collaborative risk-sharing. Panels will examine how modern contracts spur innovation while protecting stakeholders, including the use of risk matrices and gain-share/pain-share models.

EVOLVING LEGAL FRAMEWORKS

How legislation and regulations must adapt to support modern delivery methods. Sessions will address procurement law reform, dispute resolution innovations, and the role of technology in contract management and compliance.

WHY THIS EVENT MATTERS

With Ireland facing both immense opportunity and complex challenges, including limited experience with megaproject delivery, traditional risk-heavy contracting practices, and the need for more innovative, collaborative models, the conference provides a vital platform for shared learning and strategic insight.

As we convene in Dublin's most iconic cultural venue, we invite you to join us in shaping the future of megaproject delivery.
